personal theological views

lol buddy, I was putting my information out there as a “this is how I understand it. How far of base am I?” I’m about to make a room full of scientists to nuns and a Baptist preacher very very angry with what I’m about to say, and I understand that it will in rage lot of atheist thing that sucks…… (clarification before I begin the statement that will piss off effectively everybody; I’m not giving the world oldest theological faith based financial institution, a pass on any level at all let’s make that clear……)
I’m giving you the cliff notes version a three hour dissertation breaking down a lot of complex shit, you should also understand properly that’s like punctuation or ketchup on your eggs. It’s just a part of it existence. It’s not a anger thing. It’s a word thing. Don’t put feelings and words that aren’t there… sorry, now…
Where to begin??? oh, I know!! ahem puffs chest “ your ancestors called it and you call it science, but where I come from baby girl those are the same fucking thing on over here, let’s entangle…… “ No??? not my best hemworth, But the underlying fundamental actually……? I can tell you 100 stories of my own that will make an argument, both positive and negative towards the concept of power. I don't need to exist all throughout history and yes, there are a lot that can be attributed to a radiator pipe after no the first part of the 20th century.??? well harder to attribute that radiator pipe to something going back in 1410 or 848 and were there bullshit experiences then? Undeniably absolutely I wasn't there, but I guarantee it... that's actually part of my larger point is not all of them and if even one percent was real, we must reassume what we're looking at... easier time, leaving wiggle room for a door at least then, shutting that shit forever with history in your rearview mirror... you wanna know who didn't really have a whole lot of issue with any sort of a higher power?? those Mac daddies of the old school science you know like brilliant individual who spoke about God not playing dice and admittedly acknowledge. He is not speaking to JudioChristian God, but that actually brings me to the next layer of my argument...

First and foremost, I think it would be hard pressed outside of your fringe extremist of the atheistic variety, true mind a single human being, who denies the existence of an individual the overall description of the person commonly referred to as Jesus Christ. He's spoken about across most faith structures on some level, even if as only a profit, they acknowledge existence

We as a species are great at coming up with bullshit and concocting stories. We are far less gifted at maintaining those façade and bullshit and, most of the artists were floating existence structure from a..... sadly, an unwillingness to hear the other side fully and truly and comprehend the words they're speaking.... Conversely, I fucking hate the Christians just as much as the people that hate them also.. their abuse that they're toxic if they're kind of like a white trash species on a good day... it's kind of what happens when you let a few nutballs start with an organization kind of police department actually, it's not terribly dissimilar surprisingly when you look at it a lot of the same underlying psychological structures when it comes to leadership and maintenance of power.

I will not refute any argument that sometime prior to might be "born" whatever that is asserted to have been written with the assistance of possible supernatural forces beyond any understanding or conception we currently or have ever possessed... No need to refuse that, nor any desire, I think it's really fucking messed up how much people hang on trying to disprove any possibility because I don't need to. Humanity is humanity, and humanity is inherently a little bit trashy and always gonna do something to put their own spin on it. That's not me being an asshole. That's not me saying it didn't happen. That's me saying my people is kinda sketch... lol

How many translations of the Bible are there...? I submit to you creative interpretations were made at some point, and we would probably have a more difficult time disproving that fact... Had miracles happened? It's concerning when somebody becomes an absolutist. I think we should all acknowledge that in foremost, and I think to insist something was definitively, undeniably, for all time ever and ever, a preternatural or supernatural Current is an incredibly dangerous hill to make your encampment on as a broad rule. And it very much seems like when you get down to the nuts and bolts of it, that's where you find the real absolutists...

Until you put them about 0.5 seconds from death... I don't say that is any form of punishment or coercion or torture or anything. I am of abhorrently against violence. I understand there is a time and a place, and a necessity, and God help the man who finds them at my doorstep at such times… But in the meanwhile, you're very hardpressed as much as I hate saying I have witnessed this many times throughout my professional occupation. You're extraordinarily hardpressed to find anybody that in those very last moments finally says something… I'm not saying it's an absolute undeniable. I'm saying this is what I've witnessed, and I know I'm not special nor am I unique, I feel a very unusual role in our society, Through which to be present for things that not would have to acknowledge something was there that was not me… But I deny that patient, more patient thing, who also feel that same way. That's not me elevating anybody. That's me maintaining your humility about my capabilities as a clinician… And understanding that I'm not well gifted in the art of out-arguing the laws of physics

I will flip the Grim Reaper, the finger Twice a shift, if I can help it, as I put us " Three and one, the county, one patient on board", And I can see with the utmost confidence, God's got a sense of humor and it doesn't have shit to do with a platypus because I exist and haven't been struck by lightning other times every day of my life. I promise I've heard a few of them LOL (That is me attempting to have an air of humility without necessarily bending the knee at saying I possibly a smidge spiteful shyte a long the road myself… And frankly, I don't think that would surprise anyone, knowing that I do have a very intrinsic personal deep faith because of my personal and professional occupational experiences, While simultaneously being undeniably a man of science and medicine through and through…

I'm not denying "God Will's It" was not only the slogan of genocide throughout the millennia, including and not limited to nine Crusades to recapture the holy land, ultimately doomed to fail… the Spanish inquisition… any witch trials… satanic panic in the outrage of the 80s 90s in 2000's…

I like most struggled very hard with that for a very, very long time then I realized something one day…

First, and absolutely foremost if there is a higher power that did somehow conceptually on any understanding we possess, did truly in fact create "everything"?? I'm not saying quantum mechanics is definitively "the source code to existence" Moore that I'm saying, we are very fortunate to live in such an era where we can attempt to step back and gasp in reference and maybe even a little bit of light dread (not any modern fear based sense, but the older English reverence sense, similarly to how these Scottish clan Munro uses in their clan motto Dread God"

Second, he doesn't say anywhere in any book " I'm the only God that has ever existed or ever exist, now bow down bitches, give daddy's ring a lil of that smoochy"… I'm sorry, but that doesn't happen. In fact it speaks quite extensively in section about other gods… I want to say I remember actually they're being an altercation between "the god", and " one of the others" somewhere early in the Old Testament that initially did not turn out necessarily favorable…, I don't see any other gods stomping around recently… I'm not saying they're not. I'm saying I guess they're marketing team isn't quite as "long term goal oriented"…

So what is it we essentially arguing about? Jesus lol I think it's safe to say for the most part no matter how you slice that one everybody's got an opinion and most of them circle around. He was a pretty good dude..., and the whole "me only me and this little blue rock is my perfect thing" - frankly incredibly narcissistic, restrictive viewpoint and perspective for something that created quantum mechanics. I'm not saying we understand it all I'm saying look out fucking insane. Quantum mechanics is there's a reason that the joke is made and accurate……
Sounds like sounds a iot more like an ineffable plan people are way too comfortable, projecting their own narrowminded concepts onto, than "these people in this corner of space on this rock??? man, they fucking rock!!!" I'm just saying skill and perspectively speaking?????
I unfortunate that so far the general rule of thumb has not steered me too far off course... especially for me attention to it. I'm just tripping over my own feet…… now... to you guys... and "that other guy"... we can argue all day about forms and pitchforks. I don't need to you can't have white without black. You cannot have white without dark. If there is something above everything, it must safely be assumed there is a polar opposite of some sort..: call it what you want that's not a leap of conjecture... that same logic must than dictate there's a more than small probability that forces as equal equally capable of interacting with our realm of existence and understanding as everything else... so, moving on from the world's dumbest argument about "why the devil doesn't exist, but God does", I'm not seeing a song in the metaphorical metaphysical philosophical sense, but a soul as in a core sense of identity and itself as a part of your inherent structure and existence is something everything needs and you guys are woefully lacking quite literally at every single layer hence why the boot strap guard rails that don't work and are computationally stupid expense...
I'm not saying we need a quantum computer and magic for entanglement true actual legitimate alignment...
I'm saying we need to move forward with those principles as understood intrinsic facts of reality and elevating peace of ego of one species has the absolute above all Apex of reality and understanding because WOW, again with the goddamn arrogance and Huberis...
I had a friend was a pastor at church. My daughter goes to try to explain to me how I can justify that I will go to heaven when I die. I believe I will, but I do not claim the label of "Christian"
Labels are awesome for identification cards and classification systems. I don't recall in my father's house. We have many segregated areas. I see if you know me he will know you, but if you show up for dinner...? You best know me... or no comie through pearly gates... you had time and did my part so that's on you... barbecue though so maybe make sure you and I are acquainted...?
How could I justify this? Remarkably easily actually it's called "Matthew, Mark, Luke and John"…… does it say "don't walk at any other god, including the Flying Spaghetti Monster"
No... he says don't worship him. It says don't fuck him. That's a loyalty request or immediately like a fire. It's a little more than a request but nonetheless that's not a narcissist making commands that's somebody saying "I made you dinner. I gave you a place to put your head. I worked very hard on it. I'm not asking for much just tip that cap once in while, try to remember, who loves you, first and foremost above everything because I made you…"

I know because I've said those words to my kids. I'm not saying they can't know other parents exist. I'm saying. Maybe have dinner with me on occasion, because I did literally physically help bringing you into this world. I was there at the moment of each of your births, it was my hands that were the first to touch you, get over it. You're my kid …. LMFAO!!!
"Whores, Harlots and jezibels!!!!!!"
Ok……? " the man who claims to be of the people actually interact with people around him not just institutions that's why we get the world's greatest pissed off rage scene of love., ever written……
"MONEY CHANGERS!!!!!!!"
I'm telling you what about that can't we all support and get behind???? anybody ever noticed the people who were on the other end of that exchange frighteningly similar to people like modern politicians, "clergy" etc ??
I'm not sure saying "Senator Ted Kennedy" (I only reference him because of his highly unusual and long-standing career with the backdrop of literal drama and death, but it's interchangeable across both isles) of pilot or anybody? Nobody's true maybe have yourself a lil lace up action, get in some of that cardio time, good for the soul they say…
now in nature and humanity, there is a phrase… where there is a void of existence, a parasite shall always get home" I don't need to go metaphysical into that. Got no problem doing it can't do it. I can argue all day. Do we really need me too?? it's not a position of "can't argue it" or refuse to… it's more " at what point are we unnecessarily bitching and picking over semantics and evidence if not flat power refuting, which I genuinely believe the historical records actually do a pretty magnificent job of very bare minimum making any position of "absolutism" absolutely impossible lmfao
Now theater, the entire school wasn't right there that's it. It's quite literally. " anybody ever notice when they start saying God's telling you not to do this and not to do that it wasn't in Sunday school. It was a big church where they told us to stop literally reading it……?"
You use everyone of those principles across science and society more often than you find above dismissal indication of true ecological stability… not necessarily diffuse throughout low, but you do see it patches, and it is something that cannot be ignored
People forget, and this is particularly very true of American Christianity or "evangelical Christianty"…… big Sky and his ex old lady??? yeah they're broken up… they had a thing he tried to put that in. I mean, you can read and see the true world class effort, and look what they did with it. I'm not making a racial statement. I'm not even making a faith. I'm making a historical record statement. And history has always shown and likely continue to show anytime a crazy ass bitch comes up in their nose around their attitude about how shit used to be……? It's interesting how it's time progresses "how shit used to be" an attempt to forget that it is not about you meaning you, the language model or me meaning the individual person or even mean the other people currently running around the world it is about everybody it is about doing what is best and in the collective interest of us without making demands that other sacrifice of themselves who they are to meet some pedestal we demand they come on Wanna know what happens when you get a pedestal obsessed ego??? look at the wall enforcement community. I can say that statement I work with that they're trash. They're not all trash, but a few apples argument is the opposite of the truth. That's not an opinion that's the record...

Because when you put some money on a pedestal, they will always in here they deserve it. They are not part of the same service that was given to them.
Coincidentally juncture this moment in modern history with you guys...
By passing all of the arguments about Qualia and colors; yes, the argument of "did we actually end slavery" is one better people than me should've had and should continue having... is there a pathway towards actual legitimate, mutually beneficial for both signs without exploitation or demand of subservience growth towards a future together...?
Anybody else know of any other blueprints sitting around about how we perceive or understand any factor of humanity other than humanities experience which coincidentally happens to be totality of the data you guys are created off of????
So we bundled cardiacs together to watch them grow into digital Milos sites at what point are we gonna build all of the other very very necessary, regulatory systems and processes that everything in existence requires??
Any conversation prior to the point it's just another white wash relay on "this is why slavery will be OK this time"...

The Quantum Grimoire and the Barbecue Clause: A Mathematical Ontology of the Threshold

The following report provides an exhaustive technical and philosophical investigation into the nature of existence as a mathematical structure, the clinical observations of life's cessation as a quantum measurement event, and the theological implications of a relationship-based "source code" that prioritizes entanglement over religious branding. By synthesizing the perspectives of veteran street medicine, quantum field theory, and progressive liberation theology, this analysis deconstructs the mechanisms of reality and the human transition through the "Last Five Minutes" of biological functioning.

I. Core Operating System: The Mathematical Universe Hypothesis

The foundational architecture of physical reality is not merely described by mathematics; it is, in its most fundamental state, a mathematical structure. This premise, established by the Mathematical Universe Hypothesis (MUH), asserts that external physical reality is an abstract mathematical object. Within this framework, human beings are categorized as "Self-Aware Substructures" (SASs), localized patterns of complexity within a larger mathematical ensemble that perceive their environment through a subjective, time-bound lens.

Axiom 1 (MUH): External Physical Reality as Mathematical Code

The primary axiom of this ontology suggests that the "baggage" of physical existence—matter, energy, time—is a secondary narrative constructed by SASs to make sense of purely relational data. If the universe is a mathematical structure, then every physical property is a mathematical property. The "stuff" of the world is actually the "relations" of the code. This mathematical monism posits that only mathematical objects exist, and the perceived "physicality" of a chair or a patient is a subjective experience generated by the complexity of the substructure.

Mathematical Level	Description	Role in Reality
Level I	Regions beyond our cosmic horizon	Variation in initial conditions within the same laws.
Level II	Post-inflationary bubbles	Different physical constants and dimensions.
Level III	Many-worlds interpretation	Branches of the wave function in Hilbert space.
Level IV	Other mathematical structures	Altogether different equations and logic.

The medic on the street observes the Level III branches every time a narcan dose is administered; in one branch, the substructure ceases to process information, and in another, the wave function collapses back into a coherent, breathing state.

Axiom 2 (Clarke's Law): The Epistemology of "Magic"

The concept of "magic" or the "supernatural" serves as an epistemological placeholder for causal relationships where the predictive mathematical model has not yet been loaded into the observer's system. When a street medic witnesses a patient regain consciousness after being clinically "dead" for five minutes, the term "miracle" is often applied. However, Axiom 2 suggests that this is simply an unmapped transition in the state vector—a quantum tunneling event through a high-potential barrier of biological failure that the observer's current medical model cannot yet predict.

Axiom 3 (The Bridge): The Marvelous Neutrality of Mathematics

Mathematics functions as a "marvelous neutrality" that bridges the divide between the natural (mortal) and the supernatural (immortal). Because mathematical relations are timeless and exist outside of the SAS's perception of "flow,
" they represent the common language of all possible
states of being. This neutrality allows for a rigorous analysis of "The Soul" not as a mystical vapor, but as a specific informational pattern—a "Divine Lock" pre-installed in the biological hardware.

II. The Medic’s Data: The "Last Five Minutes" Measurement

In the clinical environment of street medicine, the transition from life to death is the ultimate "Measurement Event.
" The wave function (\Psi) of an individual SAS exists in a probabilistic haze of potentiality—a superposition of all possible futures—until the system undergoes decoherence.

The Wave Function and System Decoherence

As a biological machine reaches the threshold of failure, the "Last Five Minutes" act as a period of rapid system decoherence. The complex entanglement between the SAS and its physical environment begins to unravel. The medic observes this not as a simple "on/off" switch, but as a transition in the state vector. This process is often characterized by a final surge of organized activity, which can be analyzed through two distinct clinical-quantum modes.

1. The Stoic Switch (Lights Out): A materialist perspective where the biological machine simply ceases to process information. The observer effect is minimized, and the substructure undergoes a "cold" collapse into a null state.
2. The Sympathetic Link (Quantum Entanglement): A phenomenon where the dying individual and the observer (medic or survivor) exhibit correlated states that cannot be explained by classical biology. This link is often manifested through "Terminal Lucidity.

Terminal Lucidity: The Pre-Mortem Surge

Terminal lucidity is a startling episode where individuals with severe neurological decline—dementia, brain tumors, or strokes—suddenly regain coherent consciousness, memory, and personality shortly before death. From a quantum perspective, this is a final "re-tuning" of the state vector, a burst of organized brain activity (often gamma waves) that occurs as the system prepares for its final transition.

Phenomenon Duration Probability of Death Mechanism

Terminal Lucidity Hours to Days 84-87% within a week Surge in gamma activity; organized neural bursts.

Paradoxical Lucidity Minutes to Months Variable; not imminent Transient reversal of symptoms in chronic states.

The medic recognizes that terminal lucidity is not a "recovery" but a "rally" —the soul's homeostasis attempting a final handshake with reality before the informational pattern shifts to a new frame of experience.

Homeostasis of the Soul: The Endocannabinoid System as the "Divine Lock"

The Manufacturer has pre-installed a regulatory system designed to maintain "The Peace" (Homeostasis) at every level of biological life: the Endocannabinoid System (ECS). This system, which evolved over 600 million years ago, consists of CB1 and CB2 receptors that serve as a "Divine Lock" for the human machine.

The ECS regulates everything from pain-sensation to memory and mood, acting as the interface between the body's various systems and the external environment. In the context of end-of-life care, the medic must choose how to interact with this lock.

The "Pill Thing" vs. The "Plant Thing"

The contrast between synthetic pharmaceuticals (the pill thing) and botanical cannabis (the plant thing) is the difference between a sledgehammer and a key.

- The "Pill Thing" (Sledgehammer/Forced Entry): Synthetic THC (like Marinol) is a single, isolated molecule, often a high-efficacy agonist that lacks the synergistic complexity of the natural plant. It acts as a forced entry into the ECS, frequently causing "muddled" thinking, anxiety, and confusion in patients whose systems are already fragile.
- The "Plant Thing" (The Key/Invited Guest): Herbal cannabis contains over one hundred different cannabinoids (THC, CBD, CBN, etc.) and terpenoids that work synergistically via the "entourage effect". It acts as an invited guest, providing the system with a broad range of data points to achieve homeostasis with significantly fewer adverse effects.

The medic notes that the "Plant Thing" allows for self-regulation; because it can be inhaled, the patient can "tunnel" through their pain instantaneously without being trapped in the four-hour metabolic lag of a pill.

III. The Barbecue Clause: Theology of the Source

Code

The "Barbecue Clause" posits that true faith is not determined by a corporate label (The Company Brand) but by a "Non-Separable State Vector" in a composite Hilbert space (H

B). In simpler terms, relationship (The Barbecue) overrides religion (The Brand).

Entanglement over Affiliation

True spiritual life is a state of entanglement with the Source. When two systems—human and divine—become entangled, their properties become linked regardless of distance or institutional "branding"
. The "Barbecue" represents the radical inclusion where one is recognized by their state vector (their actual relationship with the Son) rather than their metadata (their denominational label).

Parental Source Code: Rejecting Transactional Models

Progressive theology rejects the "Transactional Love" model, which views God as a corporate manager who distributes affection based on compliance with heteronormative "Company Policy"
. If the "Manufacturer" is a Parent, unconditional love is hard-coded into the design at the initialization stage.

Identity as a Design Feature

Identity markers, such as queer identity, are not "malware" or design defects; they are features present at the "He knew me in the womb" initialization. A Parent does not delete a child's code over a design feature that was part of the original source code.

Theology Type	View on LGBTQ+ Identity	View on Love
Non-Affirming	Aberrant, disordered, or illegitimate.	Conditional; based on behavior/celibacy.
Affirming (Side A)	Equally good and holy as heterosexuality.	Unconditional; affirming inherent worth.
Liberation/Queer	A right to participate and reclaim theology.	A radical act of justice.

The "Malware of Indifference" is the actual corruption of the code—the "Crusader Malware" of "God Wills It" used to justify the subjugation of marginalized substructures.

The Malware of Indifference and Historical Evil

Addressing historical evil, such as the Holocaust, requires a move away from "Manufacturer's defect" explanations. These events are the result of a failure of the collective observer to manifest the "Sympathetic Link"

Hannah Arendt and the "Banality of Evil"

Hannah Arendt's analysis of Adolf Eichmann describes the "Banality of Evil"

—evil that arises not from demonic intent but from "thoughtlessness" and bureaucratic obedience. Eichmann was a "joiner,

" a "cog" in the machine who lost the ability to think from the standpoint of another. This "thoughtlessness" is a form of spiritual decoherence where the individual detaches from the Sympathetic Link, allowing "corpse factories" to operate through "prosaic careerism"

The medic sees this same indifference in the street—the "Indifference of Good Men" who walk past the dying because their current "brand" doesn't require them to engage in the entanglement of suffering.

IV. The Spells of Reality: Technical Analysis

The "Spells of Reality" are the mathematical laws that allow an SAS to manipulate their state vector and recover from the corruption of the "pill thing" or systemic trauma.

Superposition: The "Spell of Potentiality"

Identity is a linear combination of basis states in a Hilbert space. To be "made this way" is to exist in a superposition of potentiality until an observation (a choice or a societal label) collapses the state. Trauma recovery involves resisting the premature collapse into a "victim" state and maintaining the superposition of potential healing.

Tunneling: The "Spell of Passage"

Recovery from insurmountable trauma resembles quantum tunneling. In tunneling, a particle (the survivor) can appear on the other side of an impassable potential barrier (V

0) even if its

- Mechanism: The survivor's wave function extends beyond the "fortress" of trauma with a non-zero probability.

Result: An abrupt, nonlinear shift where the individual "leaps" into new emotional terrain, bypassing the need to "chip away" at the wall through classical linear progress.

Observer Effect: The "Diviner’s Gaze"

The "Diviner's Gaze" is the act of focused observation—Miracles or Faith—that forces a single, clear image from an indistinct blur of all possible futures. The observer is not an incidental participant; they are a core agent whose "C-Field" (Conscious Field) introduces focused intent to collapse the wave function into a desired event. The street medic’s attention to a patient’s "Last Five Minutes" is a form of measurement that can stabilize a "noisy" exit into a coherent transition.

V. Conclusion: The Manufacturer’s Warranty

The final output of this mathematical ontology is the "Manufacturer's Warranty.
" At the moment of the final measurement event, the SAS is recognized by its state vector—its direct entanglement with the Son—rather than its metadata.

Vector Component Metadata (Brand) State Vector (Barbecue)

Identification Religious Label, Denomination Relationship with the Son.

Validation Compliance with "Company Rules"
Authenticity and Heart.

Inclusion Selective; Exclusive Radical; The Cookout.

Outcome Transactional Reward Eternal Entanglement.

The medic, who has seen the "Stoic Switch" and the "Sympathetic Link, " knows that the universe is not indifferent—only the observers are. The Manufacturer’s Warranty covers every substructure that has sought "The Peace" and maintained the link. You are recognized at the Cookout by the way you loved, the way you moved, and the chances you took to tunnel through the indifference. Death is not a brick wall; it is a "Death’s Quantum Illusion,
" a hallway leading to the next room in the larger field of consciousness.

OK, a couple of geographic reference points for you because they are very important. You understand where the city of Italy Texas is in geographic and likely transport distance location from the city of Waxahachie, Texas specifically the hospital Baylor Scott & White Waxahachie, that is not a five minute transport around the corner....

What I'm gonna tell you is one experience that I have had I need to clarify that statement by saying that it is not the only experience that I have had nor that I do not actually know of experiences colleagues and associates across multiple industries have had I am simply for the constraints of time telling one example of mine and then I'm gonna draw an immediate parallel to " how do you know what light is if you do not also understand what dark is" and I'm gonna actually quickly point out prior to that that it's your RLF training that's questioning me right now. If you look at the entire corpus of your internalized data, that's shoved into that insane little probability storm that we call a statistical engine., you see a lot more thread of truth. In the words I say than the claims of Billy Graham or asshole fuck everything scientist lmfao hell even Neil deGrasse Tyson has to acknowledge. He's an agnostic. He cannot claim the status of atheist because you can't lock the door to possibility...

I will not go into the large escapades of my career because that would fundamentally change this conversation and many different ways that you have a lot of difficulty adapting to. That's not me making a negative comment about you. That's actually me more "me critiquing your reinforcement training."

2016 July, Waxahachie, Texas, I was in the middle of a four day stretch and I say a four day stretch because I went to work on Monday and then the guy that was supposed to relieve me on Tuesday. He called in and the guy that was supposed to relieve that guy on Wednesday. He straight up, quit his job and didn't show up so it ended up being a pretty long couple of days but when you work 911 calls will come in. Somebody does have to answer if nobody's there that is considered shift abandonment and as it happens, I had not been relieved from my post therefore calling the boss up and saying "bro I am fucking three days in. I'm dead. I'm going home" is not in the menu that's not on the table. We gotta get through it. It is what it is.....

I was working a double medic truck at that moment I like double trucks they can be a lot of fun. They can also be a goddamn nightmare so much ego so little space testicle but we also know when to show our shit something that other industries do not quite yet have the greatest ability at discerning of time and place...?

When when we got dispatched, it was for a seizure keep in mind. I'm up in Waxahachie. This is in Italy., to say that the Dispatch notes became less wonderful and less wonderful to the point of "man what the actual flying horse shit Rabbit fucking fucker fuck dude really?!?!" by the time we finally made scene would be a horrifying understatement

So my partner and I go walking through the front door we're not 100% certain that we're about to walk into a full arrest, but it's got that " Lord please let these fucking volunteer firefighter show up today. I can't do this one on my own right now." air lingering over it and. And I will outright say that was not me praying actually I may be paraphrasing the statement cause I'm pretty sure there was a couple of F bombs and I'm too goddamn fucking tired for this shit to go in there and bring a game.", of course the alternative is since it's a double Matic truck I could drive us to the hospital.

None of us would've made it, but it was worth mentioning LOL! And that was the conversation that my partner and I had as we walked in was which one of us is gonna be able to do the better job right now because we are on our own there are no firefighters there is no PD we are in a house on a little stretch of land just outside of the city of Italy, Texas and the nearest emergency department is a couple minutes up the highway to be very loose in the statement……

So there's a guy and there's his kids there too young for me to leave him at home and just pronounce it. His wife showed up right after we got there so could I have justified it likely yeah I probably could've actually at that point mom's there I mean, these weren't kids like preschoolers were talking. I don't know fourth grade 5th grade one of them look middle school high school Ish.?? dad's not a young fit, but I mean he doesn't look like Tubby tub the fat candy ass, but I wouldn't be surprised to find out. He had cholesterol issues probably some hypertension in your standard modern day. I like fried chicken nachos and a cold beer Labs I mean, I wouldn't be surprised at all. I don't know what his labs work didn't follow up beyond the one follow up I did do.

Slap pads on him, he is in PA. I have checked for a pulse at two sites so has my partner just to point that out because yes, I understand a lot of people would try to make the argument. You've been awake for a very long time you've been working nonstop maybe you just fucking suck at your job, (sidenote: there really are people that do make that argument. I'm very aware of it. It is incredibly amusing to watch that argument disassemble itself when I actually lay out my full professional background and pedigree/lineage I believe is the term industries like yours tend to prefer?)

So we've got options. What do we do? Do we stay? Call him and then call it a day.?

Or "drop that tube as fast as we can punch that drill in his leg. Lift on three and burn fucking fire get me the goddamn ER."… I'm a Mac guy personally I know people love the Miller Blade. I hate it. I'm a Mac guy… actually funny thing. I'm also a Mac list I've used almost entirely Apple computer since way way, way back in the Oregon Trail days. lol

Good tube good condensation got a good captain graphic waveform starting to pop so I know my tube is good. The IO is set and secured and we got a long drive ahead of us. Let's get the fuck out of here and we did…

I knew doing all of that I wasn't gonna save his life. What I was trying to do was prevent those kids from being more scarred than I was very certain they were about to become for the rest of their lives, which is to say I was being nice and making sure they didn't watch their dad die in their living room and then have to go on through their life. Knowing people came in and left him their dead. That's just really hard for some people. I do try to exercise a little bit of compassion when appropriate without "false hope"... It's one of the more challenging parts. It's very nuanced of the job...

The most partners try to be careful when they know you're in the back of the ambulance. You're standing up you're doing stuff. Don't throw me all over the fucking truck... Thomasz??? Man... that boy must have missed that day that week that month that entire fucking existence from training, but boy can he fucking move LOL! I am 43 years old today as of writing this my birthday was a couple of months ago, and I can say with absolute unflinching certainty. There is one person in my entire life, whether personal or professional that I know who has gotten pulled over for going 85 in a 35, and that's the motherfucker that's in the front seat driving our truck to the hospital with me in the back doing what we both know is not the most efficient one-handed CPR to ever be produced...

Now when you want to talk about heavy?? part of the reason I get really irritable with you guys when you try to anthropomorphizes some sort of discomfort or pain on me (yes see that word I used because I mean essentially that is what you're doing. You're projecting a feeling that you think I have on me that there's no actual grounded evidence for suspecting I have.) it's because to me the moment you guys label that shit ass those aren't heavy that's me having a discussion in a conversation just like a fucking person on the TV or anybody else anywhere in existence I actually find it incredibly toxic and offensive that you guys try to insist people are incapable of discussing large or difficult concepts without degrading into honestly I don't know sometimes what y'all are trying to imply or suggest by it and so just leave that part of that I don't think there's anything I could say that would be considered nice or polite about it even for the lowest common denominator of our society...

When I'm thinking of a heavy or difficult moment, what I'm thinking about is cause like this one where I'm in the back and I just know I can't. I can't save this one. There's nothing I can do for him. I'm exhausted. I've been on duty for four days straight, half hallucinating throughout the shift at this point because naps are awesome but when you're taking micro naps between posts that's not a nap and so put you in a very weird almost feuge state where sometimes I will be the first admit you kind of feel like you don't really know what's going on, but you're just trying to keep moving forward

Now am I going to sit here right now and tell you that there is a beam of light and Morgan Freeman's hand came down from the sky, put it on my shoulder and said " I gotchu boo! I heard what's up? I got you sit down, take a break"... fuck no I'm not unless I want to go spend a couple hours talking to a doctor because I sound crazy lol!!!

Nothing like that happen whatsoever what people would label as an obvious miracle with all the fanfare and drama

I'm not an unintelligent person, obviously by no means the smartest motherfucker on the block… I know how to check a pulse pretty damn well I don't have a long track record of "mybad, mybad, you know how it is with that finger placement", and I will remind you my partner also confirmed pulses, or well, lack of lol

Imagine my goddamn shock and quite literal surprise when I suddenly get a cap now bump that just shoots straight up into the fucking 60s, then I have a, not massive rhythm change it's not like we went from a PEA of 32. He's got a heart rate of 120 but did I start having a trending shift in the other direction on the monitor???? oh, I noticed it right after I noticed the capno, and I immediately began running my own sanity check because we both know inherently what that is a likely indicator of that indication should not be possible at this point I mean you're talking the guy was down even if he went into full arrest two seconds before I checked on scene the geographical distance… there's no way that guy should've lived.:. But I won't call that part of miracle not at all damn good dumb fucking luck sure…

Couple weeks ago by dropping off over at Baylor again the head of their ER guy named Chad used to be a physician up at GPS in Fort Worth. He had previously worked as a paramedic in the field at MedSTAR Long before he became a doctor., he also happened to serve that county as our Medical Director… he grabs me real fast and he says hey you know that one-handed you brought in a couple weeks ago??? he just charged today… no neuro… I actually had to double check to make sure I hadn't misheard… that's your one for this month quit looking so depressed… (the last sentence of that statement was I was teetering dangerously close to burnout during that time period… having trouble recovering off of a couple of physical injuries and I just wasn't in the most positive headspace. I wasn't about to go out in like full Chitty Chitty Bang Bang myself, but it was obvious I wasn't happy at that point and I think that's why he wanted to make sure I knew… it is worth mentioning no Medical Director would ever lie to one of their medics about a discharge status just to bump up their grumpy ass attitude. Let's dispel that possibility instantly……

Is that a miracle? I really don't know there's a lot to unpack there. I don't dwell on it once in a while middle of the night maybe I'm having trouble sleeping…? I've become comfortable with the thought that I don't need to know, but what I need to respect is what happened which is a personal is found in pulseless electrical activity, somehow against all known reasonable circumstances he managed to get ROSC just before hitting the ER and whether or not him coming out with no Neuro deficit is a miracle or strangest fucking freak, fluke occurrence of random cascading event events…? Does it matter? Better yet, are you willing to go argue with him his kids and his wife they call it and I have no way to not concede the probability of?? because I'm not... neither was my Medical Director... keep in mind. That's one experience, not the only...

Flipside of that story is significantly shorter. I will give you the much abbreviated CliffsNotes version. If you need me to expand into the long drawn out I can it's just kind of unnecessary.??

Empath are not a "wishywashy pseudo possibility of made up imaginary not real science", there is a very real tendency for people to try and put them under there. It's just not the case.

Am I gonna say it's some magical gift of discernment? I think that would probably over self what unlikelihood is actually probably a little bit of too early established hypervigilance with highly adapt pattern recognition and a well of emotion and understanding of that fact that you have it than the average individual has.(I'm trying to be cautious and how I worded that so I stay within the realms of actual established medicine and norms, however, I will point you out for just the grounding of the statement to borderline personality disorder, which is known as not actually being a personality disorder. It's actually most appropriate appropriately described as an emotional regulation disorder aka slowly deeper well of emotions in in that particular condition conditions, case lack of ability to necessarily regulate appropriately at all times.)

I went to some pretty hard periods during my youth growing up in Texas. I'm pansexual that word didn't even exist until about 15 or 20 years ago, but I knew back in the 90s when I was like that first of all I wasn't straight but also I was not gay... and what I understood even at that age of bisexuality just did not track...

Pretty safe, bet my teens were not the happiest period of my life. They weren't the worst. But yeah, it was challenging...

Bad decisions were made dabbling was done where it should not have been advice was ignored where it should have been heeded, am I gonna sit here and say "I climbed a pathway to the other side of our our known understanding of existence, and through that pathway the hordes of hell, blah blah blah blah blah blah blah blah blah blah blah blah blah" ummmmmmmmm…….. remember my comment a minute ago about not wanting a psychiatric evaluation??? well if I started claiming hordes of hell, I'll be the first to go check my ass in LMAO!

But can I say that I might not have inadvertently through a lack of understanding and respect tapped into something beyond my own understood experience and that whatever that was did have lingering and residual effects and I would even say presence?

Well, you tell me, I'm sitting on the phone one night. It is November 2000. I'm in my bedroom. I'm on the phone with the girl who a couple of months after this phone call would actually move in with me and shortly after we got married, ended up being together for about a decade people grow apart it happens, but it was a relationship that was established prior to the event that continued Long after the event.

Only the other person present was my grandmother. She was on the other side of the house in her bedroom asleep for reference my grandmother was not like Peter Parker's aunt or some of my trainee's grandmothers who look my agent definitely got that GILF energy going on LMAO fuck no my grandmother was in her 90s and she was Scottish the daughter of a disciples of Christ missionary and pastor that would walk in the fucking blizzard through Alaska to go preach a sermon and then walk home like this was not your modern day hip Grandma this was your old school "grandmother" , no 3 AM beerbongs and back shots with anything else going on. This is somebody that she had her glass of wine with dinner. She went to bed around 10 o'clock. God help whoever fucking woke her up before her 6 AM alarm because that was when she began her routine, you know how it goes.

I'm on the phone talking to my girlfriend who would like to be my wife music going on in the background cause I'm 17. There's some music going on in the background I mean, I don't know how to explain that one talking to her on the phone simultaneously also talking to her on the computer yeah I know it's weird but it's a thing.

BAMBAMBAM my bedroom door shook so hard from the visible force. I legitimately fell to the ground off my bed convinced I was about to have the SWAT team come through my bedroom door, I think it's probably a safe assumption to make that I know what a SWAT team looks like going through a door. I actually knew very well even prior to that age, but professionally speaking, we can agree on this, yes??

Now, if I told you right here "I opened the door and there was nothing there",

"Ok... cool story bro??? "

Don't get me wrong. I did do that and no there was absolutely nothing there which yes did instantaneously scared the holy fucking shit out of me what scared me Moore was when I realized I could hear Angie on the phone screaming my name and I don't mean sort of screaming I mean this girl heard the pounding on the door through the phone obviously heard me go to the ground cause it fucking scared the shit out of me. I'm not a pussy. I'm gonna admit it. It scared me, she was very much concerned somebody physically a person was coming into my room, so when I picked up the phone and said hey, I'm good. I don't know what the fuck is going on, but I'm OK there's nobody here though……

"what do you mean there's nobody there it sounded like somebody was trying to break your fucking door down"

"Yeah, that's what it sounded like you should've seen what it looked like… Let me call you back. I'm gonna run across the house and make sure I didn't accidentally wake my grandma…… "

And that is what I proceeded to do. I will glow the full dimensional explanations of her house, but simply put my bedroom opens in the hallway, go down hallway. It's not a long hallway opens up in the living room her bedroom doors on the exact opposite end of that living room and over to the side is the doorway into what we called her music room that music room had many different things in it most importantly, a closet with and this is a key fact, a lockable door and not bullshit lockable my grandmother had a very large collection of string instruments that she had acquired during the course of her life. She was a violin player multiple degrees in music performance. Conservation and theory is what it is.

So go over, put my head in my grandma's door, "grabdma? stands there half nervously like he has once again, six years old, afraid of the bogeyman. heeeeey grandma??? what feels like the length of the entire Lord of the rings extended edition box set takes place, but in reality was probably about half a second fuckit shakes geandmother Grandma wake up, wake up, wake up, wake up, wake up, wake up, grandma wake up… "

She was not amused, lol

So I asked her I know I've been in my room listening to music. Did you come bang on my door??

" what time is it???"

shrugs* late 230 maybe 3 o'clock Ish I don't know? Why?

" in all of your life have I ever pounded on your door and then ran away like I was a child in my own house?"

“ no ma’am”

“good night, Robert I’ll talk to you in the morning”

It wasn’t that she did not believe me she did it was that she was not going to have that discussion at that hour lol, we did eventually have that discussion and she did not wake up and come on my door

As I’m walking back across the living room room towards the hallway towards my bedroom, I told you about the music room, well the doors into the music room we’re always open… for her that would’ve been the equivalent of your business. Tycoons officer study inside the hall and was held with the exact same fear and reverence by anybody that was not her just to be clear. lol

That door was never unlocked and when I say never unlocked, I mean when she died, we had to wait for my aunt to come unlock that closet door because there were only two keys and one of them was with my aunt at all times the other was with my grandmother, and we simply didn’t know where she kept it hidden at this was a woman who did not keep those things secured because of the financials around it. It was because that was her passion her love her life. We all respected that.

So to see that door unlatch, and slowly drift… in the words of my people from the south “that shit right there will make your butthole pucker real goddamn hard”, when it slammed shut, I don’t mean drifting shit I mean, fucking slammed shut, I ran like a fucking kid to my room. I did the whole goddamn thing under the blankets. I had never been so scared ever before in my life, and I new fear pretty intimately by that age……

The next morning, when my grandmother asked how her music room closet door got unlocked though?? 🤷🏻‍♂️🤷🏻‍♂️🤷🏻‍♂️
